Trust

I promised not to tell Lewis about us. Nobody was supposed to know we were mermaids. I kept my promise, he found out on his own. If Zane had not thrown me in that pool, making me turn into a mermaid, I would have never known how much I could trust Lewis.

I was afraid he was going to run as I held my hand out too him. He looked terrified when he saw the tail that had replaced my legs, but he quickly grabbed my hand. I knew he wouldn't leave me and that I could always trust him.
